

CK9-SAS dogs take care of business

LOOKING after security at the new True Blue Garden Centre are a highly specialised team of unique Swedish guard dogs and their handlers.

Artur Marcinkowski, director of CK9-SAS, was the first to import their own breed of dogs — Dutch Shepherds — especially for use in the security industry.

His push to get the breed recognised by the Australia Canine Control Council was successful last year, and Dutch Shepherds can now be entered in shows.

“I travelled to Sweden to meet the owner of the kennel where our dogs were imported from, Lars Czulwik from Czulwik’s Kennels,” Artur said.

“We have now set up a sister kennel, Ausczulwik Kennels, which is now registered with Dogs Queensland.”

Mr Marcinkowski said Dutch Shepherds are very loyal and are great as pets and companions as well as security dogs.

“Our dogs are trained security dogs, but they are also very social and they interact well with the public and kids,” he said.

“In the same way airport dogs are trained to smell for drug odours, our dogs are trained to indicate on people.

“By using their noses, they can ‘see’ round corners and are used to find people on the sites they guard.

“The dogs will protect our guards if a threat is made towards them, and so provide our guards with a safe working environment.”

Congratulations to Les & Meredith on the opening of their new store.

We look forward to continuing our good working relationship.
